WANZER SEWING MACHINES. SEWING-MACHINE BUYERS, BEWARE OF PURCHASING MACHINES, which once were good by comparison, but now are bad by comparison.

The WANZER MACHINES ARE NOW The PRIZE MACHINES OF THE WORLD.

The LITTLE WANZER has never yet been defeated in public competition.

It is used in the British Public schools because the premier hand and treadle machine of the world.

No disinterested person disputes its superiority.

The Wanger Company having defeated all others in the race for excellence in the speciality of the combined hand and treadle machine, the Little Wanner, HAVE TURNEN THEIR ATTENTION DURING THE LAST FEW YEARS to the manufacture of larger FAMILY and MANUFACTURING MACHINES, and we sak the public to judge with what result from the following facts:—

"At the Rahibition at Brantford, Canada, last October " (1574), the 'D' Machine took 1st PRIZE over Singer's No. 2 and Wheeler and Wilson No. 6 for MANUFACTUBING.

"Howe A., Williams, Wheeler and Wilson No. 2, and

"Webster, for FAMILY USE."
These and other FACTS go altogether beyond mernasertion, and purchasers of Wanzer machines may FREI EATISFIED they are buying wisely.

AUSTRALIAN MUTUAL PROVIDENT SOCIETY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—Nearly all the provision which I have been enabled to make for my family I have made through this institution, therefore its safety and success are to me of the greatest importance. I tender my hearty thenks to "Wellwisher" for his very plain and sensible letter in your Tuesday's issue.

Notwithstanding, I am at a loss to know how I should act in reference to the question at issue. The present mode I think requires some alteration. It strikes me that if the list of members' names were published, without publishing the amounts for which they are insured, all that is required by those who wish for fair play in canvassing would be obtained, and some of, if not all, the dangers seen by "Wellwisher" avoided. From the fillowing facts I conclude that the names of members always were, up to a very recent date, if not now, accessible to some, if not to all, candidates for the directory. The resolutions sought to be rescincied were passed under the impression that some candidates had access to information which was denied to other candidates If this is so, it is not fair. It must, however, he plain to all that, under any circumstances, a director seaking re-firthfor has information that will eithe circumstance of director.

The facts above alluded to are the following "For years I lived some hundreds of miles from Syday, and was urknown in this city except by two or three persons, who did not know that I had any interest in the Australian Mutual Provident Society, yet I was collided for my votes at every election by gentlemen whom to this day I do not know by sight. Some five or six years ago a very vigorous canvass was made in Patramatta for a new director, and the canvaser, a highly respectable young gentleman, showed me a lat of. I believe, all the members in the Patramatta for a new director, and the canvaser, a highly respectable young gentleman, showed me a lat of. I believe, all the members in the Patramatta

BERRIMA BRANCH RAILWAY.

BERRIMA BRANCH RAILWAY.

TOTHE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sin,—The enunciations of Ministers during their election tours, although not very definite, sufficiently indicated the policy to be acted on so far as relates to the construction of new lines of railway, either tranching from existing lines or the formation of them unconnected therewith, amongst the latter of which that of the Illawarra line; the proposed Berrims branch from the Southern line; the proposed Berrims branch line, requiring only two and a half miles at a cost of about £12,50e, may also be taken as coming within the category of those that may be regarded as calling within the policy shadowed by the speeches before referred to, so that if the Ministry recognize the Illawarra line, they are piedged still more to support the Berrima branch, for the very same reasons set orth for the support of one apply with equal or greater force to the least expensive undertaking, which promises equal or greater results than the more costly line. Mr. Porster, I submit, has struck the true test by which a correct decision must be arrived at—that is, that when it can be shown to pay equal interest to that of existing lines, new lines should be constructed.

It therefore request the favour that you will afford equal publicity to the proceedings of the committee of the Berrima branch as that which you have accorded to the projected Illawarrs line of railway, as I betwee the period has arrived when the coal and shale and iron industry may reasonably put in a claim to the projected Illawarrs line of railway, as I betwee the great public interests that channot be kept out of the William of the projected Illawarrs line of railway, as I betwee the great public interests that channot be kept out of the Ministry may reasonably put in a claim to the larrousge of the Government, and so be placed on equality with other industries calculated to promote the great public interests that channot the Reprime of the Blawarra line are deepely interested in the Berrims of the Blawarra l

the gray puton interests that cannot be kept out of view in any undertaking initiated by the Government.

It could easily be shown that even the promoters of the Hawarra line are deeply interested in the Berrima branch, which ought to be regarded as a mere precursor of the former, having in view the very same objects, with this difference however, that the latter could be constructed in six months, whereas the former might occupy as many years. The derrima branch would, therefore, open up the traffic without delay, and so secure it for this part of the colony, in furtherance (so to speak) of the traffic to be afterwards conjoined on the completion of the Rilawarra line, or side by side therewith. By this means any viversion of the coal trade would be obvisted and securely associated with the development of our Southern mines, so urgently needed.

I herewith append the estimate of the Berrima Branch traffic :—

THE LONDON POLICE AND THEIR WORK.

WE take some further interesting statistics which are presented in the elaborate statement of Colone! Herderson, the Chief of the London Police, for 1872.

Herderson, the Chief of the London Police, for 1873.

First, as to the number of offices under Colonel Herderson's command for the year 1873, to which year the report refers. The total authorised strength of the Metropolitan police on the 31st December, 1873, was 9883, being an increase of 122 men above the strength of the corresponding date in 1872—the increase being 10 inspectors, 8 sergeants, and 104 constables. The duties of the metropolis absorbed 18 superintendents, 184 inspectors, 770 sergeants, and 713 constables: the Royal dockyards and military stations, 4 superintendents, 37 inspectors, 84 sergeants, and 504 constables: and the Government and private establishments, at which the Metropolitan police are employed at the cost of the departments, or persons on whose behalf they are employed—14 inspectors, 54 sergeants, and 472 constables. The number of men dismissed for misconduct in 1873 was 234, precisely the same as in the previous year; and 171 resigned for misconduct. The percentage of deaths for the years was very much less than was the case in the years previous to 1869. The proportion of old constables in the metropolitan police shows a steady increase, and is a good test of the popularity of the service. In 1864, there were 4136 men whose service exceeded five years, and in 1873 that number had increased to 5934.

Under the revised regulations gratuites of one metals, now for each year of service are granted.

the popularity of the service. In 1804, there were $4136 men whose service exceeded five years, and in 1873 that number had increased to 5934.

Under the revised regulations gratuities of one month's pay for each year of service are granted up to fifteen years' service; after fifteen years' service praisons are granted to every well-conducted man incapacitated from further service on a scale of one-fiftieth of his pay for each year of service up to 20 years from 20 to 25 years' service completed two-fiftieths for each year; and from 25 to 23 years' service one-fiftieth for each year; after 28 years the pension is two-thirds of the pay, being the limit fixed by the Act of Parliament. All pensions are for life.

The report says that there has been a marked and satisfactory decrease in the number of assaults on the police during the year 1873, the number having decreased from 3692 in 1872 to 2521 in 1873. As for the conduct of the police themselves, only 17 men out a daily average of 9858 men were charged with offences before a magistrate during the year; and only 12 of that number were convicted—4 for drunk-enness on duty, 4 for withdrawing themselves from duty, 1 for violation of duty. 2 for bigamy, and 1 for assault. Ten out of the 17 constables were of leasthan two years service. Now for the other side of the picture: although the worst side is remarkably good. Sixty-six police officers were specially commended by Judges and magistrates, and 767 received rewards from the Commissioners for meritorious conduct and special services.

We now come to the class of statistics which represent the very numerous aspects of the work of a member of the Metropolitan Police Force. In 1873 the rewards from the Commissioners for meritorious conduct and special services.

We now come to the class of statistics which represent the very numerous aspects of the work of a member of the Metropoltan Police Force. In 1873 the number of persons taken into custody was 73,857. In 1872 it was considerably greater, namely 78,203. The principal items in the decrease are the assaults, both ecomome assaults and assaults on the police, which, taken together with attempts to rescue, and classification of the police in the performance of their duty, decreased frem 11,024 in 1872, to 1939 in 1873. This looks well, but the next paragraph says even more for the modern liabylon, as some writers are fond of calling it. "Three is also for the year (1873), a considerable diminution in the number of suspicious characters who came under the cognizance of the police." The chief variation in the general category of crimes is in the continued diminution in the cases of burglary and housebreaking, of robbery and attempts to rob, and of accept to the amount of £5, in dwellings. The following figures for 1873 are remarkable, when it is considered that they apply to the myriad-housed city—burglary and housebreaking, 28, 52 cases of robbery and attempts to rob. Of the last-named cases, there were 147, in 1869. Larceny, above the value of £6, in dwellings, which in the words of the report, "comprises all serious offences." has decreased from 1069 cases in 1867, to 488 in 1873. Larcenies by strants keep a steady average; while petty larcenies have increased. The report attributes a large proportion of the petty thefts to the carelessues of from 6092 in 1872, to 5636 in 1873. The number of heights of the ill-disposed. Prostitutes apprehended decreased from 5092 in 1872, to 5636 in 1873. The number of heights of the police." The number of known thieves and depredators, receivers of stole property, and suspected persons in the records has increased from 3115 in 1873, to 3467 in 1873. "Of these 763 are under 18 years of age." How many Fagins sone; they live notoriously by plunder; their hand a sgainst every man, and every man's hand is against hem.

"The second class is, if possible, more dangerous to ociety than the first, because more systematic in heir life of fraud, and often less distinguishable by heir external appearance and manner. These are youthe who are regularly trained by their parents or thers in courses of professed dishonesty, some as sickpeckets, others as coiners, or in such varied modes f depriving their neighbour of his property as their occuliar circumstances may suggest.

"A third class, and perhaps a still more numerous ne, consists of children who are not hardened and daring as the first, or trained to crime as the second, but who, from the culpable neglect of their parents, and an entire want of all religious or moral influence them, have gradually acquired, while quite young abits of pettr thiering, which are comived at rather than punished by their parents, and which will, unless ficctually stopped, lead ere long to daring violations of the law.

"Our fourth class consists of those who have o care for them, while their claims on support from the National Poor Laws have been either passed by unnoticed, or rejected by the administrators of those laws."

The readers of the Herald may also be referred to the "extra volume" of Mayhews "London Labour and London Poor" for some sad but interesting settless of juvenile criminality. In our own city of Sydney, with all the preventive and negativing institutions which we possess, a youthful class of depredators is one which long ago became an ancertained fact. "There are 87 houses known to be those of receivers of stolen goods," kept by that class of persons who are known in "eant" phrase as "fences" who, ays John Camdon Hotten, in his slang dictionary. 'are the purchasers or receivers of stolen goods." A "fence" also, says Mr. Hotten, means the shop "or warshouse of a fencer." For the offence of receiving stolen goods 210 persons were taken into custody during the year; of whom 147 were committed for trial, and 101 were convicted and sentenced.

Now we come to consider the extension of the Vast field for the operations of the London police. Eight new stations were built and opened during the year 1873; and within the same period 154 new streets and squares were opened and placed under the charge of the police; covering 26 miles and 890 yards—lineal distance. Although only 20 miles of new streets were opened in the previous year (1872), still the increase in this respect is considerable reduction on former years. The number of new houses built during 1873 was 11,077. The total number of articles left in public carriages and deposited in the Lost Property Office had increased from 1912 in the year 1869 to 14,136 in 1873. We append the following note affixed to this portion of Colonel Henderson's report: "Meanwhile it is satisfactory that over 800 cabdivers strictly and voluntarily abstain from the use of the luwes 4 feet shades of which were from consumption or disease of the luwes 4 feet shades of the luwes 4 feet shades of which were from consumption or dise

Out of a strength of 9465 officers, there were 44 deaths, 12 of which were from consumption or disease of the lungs, 4 from pneumonis, and 4 from rheumatic fever and carditis, and 3 from bronchitis—figures which tell their this of exposure to cold and wet. The per-centage of sickness over the whole force was 61.

Lastly, as to the pay of the officers. The pay of a constable varies from £1 4s, per week for "a third class ordinary" to £1 11s. 6d, for a first class reserve. A divisional detective receives £1 12s. Bergeants, according to class, receive from £1 14s. bt £2. Detective seegeants receives from £2 7s. 4d to £3 2s. 8d Inspectors receives from £2 15s. 6d, to £3 6s. 6d. A chief isaspector has £3 13s. per week. Detective inspectors at chief office receive £4 6s. 11d., and

"chief detective inspectors" 25 6s. 2d. Superinger-dents receive 25 16s. 5d. for the first year, with an increase every year up to the 11th, when the rate of renuneration reaches 27 15s. 11d. per week.

better protected against febrile and inflammatory disorders than men who are chiefly musele-workers. "This was shown," says Dr. Beard, "in the late wer the Civil War!, when delicate ensangined youth, followed by the fear of friends, went forth to camp and battle, and not only survived, but grew stout amid exposures that prostrated by thousands the lumbermen of Maine and the sons of the plough and the anvil." And he adds, "My studies have shown that, of distinctively nervous diseases, those which have the worst pathology and are the most hopeless, such as locomotor ataxis, progressive muscular atrophy, apoplexy with hemiplegia, and so on, are more common and more severe and more fatal among the comparatively strong and tough than among the most delicately and finely organised. Cancer even goes hardest with the hardy, and is most relievable in the nervous." If that can be substantiated, no doubt it shows that the habitual exercise of the brain modifies the more purely animal and vegetable functions of the constitution for the better, quite spart from the conditions favourable to comfort and convenience which it generally introduces into our external life. If educated men, are less liable to, or less prostrated by, malarious fevers (say) than half-educated or un-educated men, if paralysis is commoner or comes earlier with the artisan and the labourer than with the lawyer or the physician,—then surely Dr. Beard has proved his point that the habitual exercise of the brain is in a high degree favourable to the life and strength of man. Dr. Beard goes even further, and ascribes a great deal of the power of resovery manifested by the cultivated classes to "force of will." "One does not need to practise medicine long to learn that men die who might just as well live, if they resolved to live; and that myriads who are invalid might become strong, if they had the nature or acquired will to vow that they would do so. Those who have no other quality favourable to life, showe bodily organs are nearly all diseased, to whom ea secause he would possess it. Developed brain may well be additional life, not only in the sense in which the erratinly is so, namely, an additional sphere of activity both for thought and feeling, but also in the sense of additional power of resistance to the inroads of disease, additional power of life, additional forts, within which the life takes refuge till those diseases which are of a periodic character have exhausted heir power, and the whole body can be once more restored to health.

But valuable as are Dr. Beard's conclusions, heertainly does not prove that the quality and quantity of the work done by the world's greatest benefactors has not, on the whole, been very frequently njurious to their health, and even fatal to the hopes they might otherwise have entertained of a long life. Unquestionably, such benefactors have picked lives; but these picked lives are often, perhaps generally, sed up sooner than they otherwise would have been, by excessive drains upon very finite stocks of vital force. Dr. Beard has no doubt brought additional evidence of the wisdom of the proverb "better wear ut than rust out." But he has not done anything to disprove that, with an equal start, people who neither wear out nor rust out will be likely to have a ... onger life than either the one class or the other.

Dr. Read virtually originate the contributed of the contributed of the contributed of the contributed of the contributed the contributed of the subscriptions and to have school sermons, begging and begging for the upholding of the school," and Mr. Kempe appears before us in this very character. Is it possible for men to make the most of education when they have to maintain it under these difficulties? The School Board, on the other hand, having the power to obtain all the money it needs, can at least be held responsible for making education as thorough and complete as possible. Wherever a board is established there is an authority whose business it is to provide education and to do nothing else. Our usual habits dispose us, on the face of things, to leave the work to this responsible body, and not to attempt to do it better curselves. Of course, Mr. Kempe pleads for the religious value of National schools, and predicts the benefits produced by the kindly intercourse of the clergyman with the children. But, in the first place, when a bishop confesses that, speaking generally, our schools do not make good Christians, the force of a plea founded on the supposition that they do is considerably weakened. But, besides this, Bishop Fraser probably expresses a general sentiment when he frankly refuses to be alarmed at all respecting the character of the education of the future. The mind of the country at large is, he says, religious, and it will take care that education is conducted in conformity with this spirit.

We may now turn to the confessions of the Bishop of Gloucester. Dr. Ellicott speaks of "the deepening ing the character of the education of the future. The mind of the country at large is, he says, religious, and it will take care that education is conducted in conformity with this spirit.

We may now turn to the confessions of the Bishop of Gloucester. Dr. Ellicott speaks of "the deepening spiritual needs of our great towns as a subject of increasing importance at this time." There are now about fifteen millions of the population dwelling in towns, and about eight millions in country places: but whereas there are thirteen thousand clergymen serving among the smaller population, there are only eight thousand serving among the larger. This, as he says, is a great disparity, and it seems increasing. Clines are growing fast, and candidates for ordination are fewer than they were a quarter of a centary ago, although the average stipends of curates pand by the Church Societies have been raised from £82 to £129 within the same period. Large towns, in short, the Bishop says, are now worse off than ever for clerical labour. Now, in this dearth of spiritual agencies, does not the question arise whether the remedy suggested by the Bishop of Manchester for schoole might not be equally serviceable far the Church? The clergy, it appears, have an annually increasing burden imposed upon them in one direction, while at the same time a fresh agency is established which would relieve them of a most trouble-some burden in another direction. Does not common sense auggest that the opportunity to economise and concentrate time and energy should at least be favourably regarded, and, in the absence of special reasons to the contrary, cheerfully accepted? Mr. Kempe has "no doubt that the Church, if relieved of the cost and labour of her present schools, would be able to concentrate an amazing amount of energy and liberality upon instruction exclusively religious." What objection is there to countervail this immense advantage? The clergy, says Mr. Kempe, would not be brought so much as at present into a "sort of general pastoral relatio

THE City Aldermen must surely be hard up when they feel obliged to lay the blame of their comewhat unsuccessful visit to Mr. ROBERTSON somewhat unauccessful visit to Mr. ROBERTSON on the shoulders of those unlucky scapegoats, the reporters. They seem constrained to admit that they did not cut a very good figure in the newspapers, and according to the MAYOR they did not cut a geed figure in the COLONIAL SECRETARY'S room. What particular points SECRETARY'S room. What perticular points were omitted by the reporters the Aldermen have themselves omitted to state, although they had a fine chance of doing so at the meeting at which their complaints were re-hearsed; but it would seem, after all, as if the alleged unfairness of the reporters in missing he point of their effective replies was an after-thought, because another reason given for their lame defence was that they were taken by surprise—that Mr. Robertson had come armed with papers, and in excellent form, while they themselves were out of training, and were taken unawares.

It is a funny excuse for men who have been

It is a funny excuse for men who have been putting their case before the public for months, we may say for years past. Ever since financial difficulties began to loom in the distance the Corporation has been representing that it had a case against the Government; it has been the theme of numberless speeches, and the people have all along been led to believe that if a good hearing could only be got for their case it would be triumphantly successful: and case it would be triumphantly successful; and when the chance comes and there is a sacco we are told that it was because the Aldermen were not prepared. There has been a good deal said lately about the tremendous preparations that BISMARCK and MOLETE are making for the next EUROPERS was case whenever. deal said lately about the tremendous preparations that Bismarck and Molkitz are making for the next European war case whenever it comes to be tried. We are told that they have got 2,800,000 men under war training, and that they can put 640,000 fully armed on any point of the frontier at a fortnight's notice. If after the world has been fully made aware of these facts, and war should break out, and the Germans should be defeated and should excus: themselves that they were taken by surprise. It is very similar to the attitude taken by our city Aldermen. They have had elaborate balance-sheets made out, showing their financial affairs; they have had a select committee of inquiry by Parliament, conducted by one of their own number; they have had repeated interviews with city members and with members of different Administrations, and have been loud in complaints that they cannot get proper attention paid to their wrongs; and yet when asked to answer a few plain.

questions, they are unable to make an effective reply, and seek to cover their retreat by stating, first, that they were taken aback, and were not ready, and, secondly, that they made a good defence, but the gentlemen of the l'ress did not report it—a combination of reasons which is on a logical par with that of the celebrated laundress who, on being refused by a neighbour the loan of a washing-tub, on the ground that on the last occasion it was returned in a dilapidated state, retorted, first, that it was in a dilapidated state, retorted, first, that it wa sent back in perfectly good condition, and, secondly, that it was all in pieces when it was As a matter of fact, however, no very great

As a matter of fact, however, no very great amount of preparation was required to discuss the matter with the Minister, because the whole merits of the question rest far more upon the few broad facts and general principles than upon the details of figures. The difficulties of the Corporation, as has been often pointed out, spring mainly from its being sat died with the sewerage and water works, and the Government has been asked to forgive the delt contracted for these two undertakings on debt contracted for these two undertakings on the ground that they were both commenced by an irresponsible commission. It is obvious to every one that before any Government which had the fear of the country members before its cyes could accede to that demand, certain ques-tions would have to be asked and satisfactorily answered. It will be asked with respect to the drainage works whether the Corporation did not very materially add to the works un-dertaken by the Commissioners, and whether it did not do so at a time when no sewerage rate was being levied, or when only half the rate was being levied; and whether entirely new sewers with fresh outlets have not been constructed solely under the control of the Cor-poration. If so, by whose neglect has it been hat the rates were not collected, and if the hat the rates were not collected, and if the law was imperfect has everything been done that could have been done to get the law altered? Have the city authorities honestly done their utmost to collect rates so as to make the work pay for itself; and, in the absence of any ability so to make the work self-supporting, have they abstained from increasing the liability? No alderman wants any immense amount of preparation to answer questions of this kind; all aldermen must know that they are exactly the soit of questions that have to be asked and answered, and every person of common and answered, and every person of common sense must see that they go to the root of the matter when the question is as to the moral responsibility of the Corporation. So again asked whether the system has or has not answered expectations so far; whether it has yielded the quantity of water it was destined to yield, and at the cost that was calculated on; whether the Corporation has gone on adding to the efficiency of the system by additional works, and whether it has collected a revenue sufficient to pay the interest on the outlant whether to pay the interest on the outlay; whether if it has not done so it has used all legitimate influence to increase the revenue, and whether it has kept its accounts so clear as to show at a glance how much capital is invested in the affair, and what is the annual revenue after deducting working expenses. No Government, no Parliament, would dream of wiping off the city debt incurred on account of the water system without understanding the points raised in such questions as these, and aldermen who have been pressing their demands for years ought not at any time to be much at a loss to state clearly the general principles of the Corporation case.

We have always held that the Corporation has a case against the Government up to a certain amount, but the Government also has a case against the Corporation. If on the one hard rates are fairly chargeable for all public buildings, an adequate endowment propor-tional, all things considered, to what is given to chie the Corporation as to the way in which it has acted as trustee with regard to the sewerage and water works. The Government guaranteed the debt and left the Corporation to see to all the detailed workings of these two undertakings. Has it carried out its trust efficiently and thoroughly? If it can show that it has, then no blame rests with it; but if it has been negligent, purposely negligent because it was afraid to face the unpleasant necessity of taxation, then so far it will have to bear the accumulated results of its negligence. No municipality in the world can incur a debt for public works, abstain from raising rates to pay the interest, allow the debt to go on accumulating year after year at compound interest, and then expect that all the rest of the community will subscribe to pay off old scores, and allow a fresh start to repeat the

THE Chamber of Commerce needs no apology for the action which they have taken in pres-ing the question of railway extension into the city upon the notice of the Government. In common with all who have the temerity to look beyond the length of their noses, they may expect to be snubbed for interference in matters which do not concern them; but, whatever the Government or the Parliament may think of the matter at present, there can be little doubt that before many years are over our heads the whistle of the locomotive will be heard along whiste of the locomotive will be heard along our wharfs. Sydney is at present the centre upon which converges most of the trade of the Pacific; and its geographical position, its port accommodation, the facilities which exist for trade, and the establishment of manufacturing industries, and the comparative absence of all fiscal barriers indicate a more rapid growth in industries, and the comparative absence of all fiscal barriers indicate a more rapid growth in the future than has been possible with a smaller population in the past. The natural growth of a population, which now exceeds 164,000, must be considerable, unless we are to have a perennial attack of measles. The arrivals from the adjacent colonies, Europe, and America will count for something, and to these may be added the influx of those who come from the interior to enjoy the luxuries of city life or to push their fortunes in the capital. It is obvious that in a quarter of a century or less Sydney will take rank as one of the great cities of the world. The traffic in our narrow and tortuous streets is at times now almost at a standstill. The stolidity of Governments and the petty jealousies of country members may refuse to anticipate public requirements in the smallest degree, but that those requirements will have to be met is as certain as that the sun shines at noonday. It seems that city members have yet to acquire the art of log-rolling. A mere handful of people at Maitland have three railway stations erected for their convenience without asking; a few score persons at Morpeth are handsomely endowed in order that they may enjoy a similar privilege, and the Railway Department are about finishing "platforms" half a mile from the Ashfield and Burwood stations—such is their anxiety, as far as possible, to bring the locomotive to every siderable sum, and as production is increased, this unnecessary waste in the hardling and this unnecessary waste in the hardling and haulage of commodities will be enormously augmented. The high price of labour ought to teach us its value, and, to any one who reflects upon the alow and cumbrous methods of doing things which are still in vogue in this colony, the loss to the wealth-producing power of the community will appear very much in the light of a public misfortune.

But there are other considerations which, if not of so purely a mercantile complexion as not of so purely a mercantile complexion as those adduced by the members of the Chamber those adduced by the members of the Chamber who took part in the discussion of the subject before their body, are scarcely less weighty. Sydney has outgrown itself. The population per acre is said to be already greater than that of London, and the great majority of English cities; the suburban population exceeds 70,000, but the facilities which we possess for the movement of the people are deplorably inadequate, and our means of locomotion are altogether behind the age. It may be practicable to run up a few more thousand houses in the city; but, having regard to our climate, to the hugger-mugger style in which the buildings hugger-mugger style in which the buildings have been raked together, and to the defective nature of our sanitary arrangements, we have no hesitation in saying that Sydney, as included within the municipal boundaries, ought not to become the dwelling place of a much larger population.

The exigencies of the time and place are such as compel many thousands of persons to come into the city every day of their lives. Sydney is, to all intents and purposes, the great or the operations of Government are carried on, necessitating the employment of a multitude of clerks and professional men. The shipping trade of the port enlists in its service many thousands more; and the everincreasing extension and perfection of the means of inland communication, concentrating husiness upon Sydney will make corresponding business upon Sydney, will make corresponding demands upon labour, skilled and unskilled. We must continue to have a constantly increasing number of persons who are engaged in the who are engaged in local production will necessarily multiply as industries which now in their infancy ramify and flourish. the speedy and efficient transaction of business it is necessary that traders, clerks, artisans— men of all classes and conditions—shall be brought, as it were, within speaking distance brought, as it were, within speaking unsumer for a certain number of liburs every day. Seven or eight hundred men may find employment at P. N. Russell's or the Waterview Bay they cannot board and Works, but they cannot beard and lodge on the premises. The space which supplies effices, workshops, and stores cannot be made to supply houses; and as the great bulk of the people have some regard for health and decency they betake themselves to the suburbs, and build residences for their families there.

In all large cities of which we have any knowledge, the contrivances of modern engi-neering science have been made available for the rapid and convenient concentration of the people during the day, and for their dispersion over a wider area during the night. It is only in this way that the business of a large city can be transacted, while at the same time the physical and moral health of the communities are in a great degree preserved unimarized. what a babel and what a lazar-house would London become, if it were handed over to the tender mercies of our Transit-Commissioners and city aldermen for four and twenty hours: There is no use in blinking the twenty hours! There is no use in blinking the fact—we are, more particularly in regard to the means of locomotion, woefully behind the age. People have now a choice of two evils—they must either live in neighbourhoods and under conditions most unfavourable to health, or undergo a process of crushing and jolting, night and morning, which must be as trying to their temper as it is wasteful of their time. The lequanimity with which many thousands of our fellow-citizens daily bestow themselves in small, leaky, and ill-regulated vehicles is the best excuse we can discover for the masterly inactivity of the Commissioner for Railways.

In Melbourne, private enterprise has accom-plished what the Chamber of Commerce are now asking the Government to undertake. Our circumstances, however, render the adop-tion of a similar course impossible. In Victoria the Government are desirous of purchasing the Hovernment are desirous or purchasing the lines of the Hobson's Bay Company; and he tradency of opinion in England is setting strongly in the direction of a Government owner-hip of all the railways. The only rail-way which would be of any value for passenger traffic would be a continuation of the existing line isto the city, and it would be useless to nne into the city, and it would be useless to project any branch lines except in connection with that already laid. It is extremely desirable that provision should be contemplated for the traffic requirements of our eastern suburbs, and real economy would be consulted by having the matter dealt with without delay. Then there is a large extent of rich and beauine into the city, and it would Then there is a large extent of rich and beau-tiful country westward, on the northern bank of tiful country westward, on the northern bank of the Parramatta River, which will sooner or later have to be annexed to Sydney by means of a railway, and Mr. Forster showed com-mendable foresight when he insisted that the proposed bridges across the Parramatta River should be built strong enough for rail-way traffic. We have spent some hundreds of thousands upon fortifications of one kind or other, but about the best military movement we could make would be to lay down a railway to Botany and to the South Head. to Botany and to the South Head.

As far as our reading of Parliamentary returns about railways has gone, we have come to the conclusion that the suburban traffic, notto the conclusion that the suburban traffic, not-withstanding the disabilities under which it lies, is the most re nunerative, or, more cor-rectly, the least unprofitable, part of our rail-way investment; and, in the absence of any professional information on the point, we should expect that, whenever the railway is really brought within the reach of the people of Sydney, the traffic will yield a very hand-some return on the outlay. Upon this point, however, Mr. Lackey may easily obtain the necessary data for forming a correct opinion from the officers of his department.

REPRESENTATION OF FIJI AT OUR METRO-POLITAL EXHIBITION.—Mr. Marshall Moore, an old resident of Fiji, has been requested by his follow colemiate to act at the representative of that colony at our Metro-politan Exhibition. We learn that the merchants of Fiji have premised to furnish for exhibition here a variety of pro-ducts, including manufactured tobacco, cigara, angar, five, numers, partifiedli, sendal wood, tortoisschall, beshe-de-mer, opices, medicinal herbs, fax, coston, copra, coffee, selection of woods, furniture, rum, gyrap, and views and caricottine. To make the collection still more interesting, persona having Fijian products or conrecistions on invited to ferward them to Mr. Juke Joshes, the secretary of the Agricalization Society, who will, at the class of the Exhibi-tion, tee that they are safely returned to the owners.

often serve to indicate the course of the stream, so amall matters will often indicate important facts in legard to enterprise. be credited, there are persons enterprising enough in Meibourne to import cysters from Sydney, and then send them to Wagga Wagga overland by rail and coach.

In returning to Sydney, we took the road via Coots mundra, which, for the first twenty or thirty miles, I thought a great improvement upon the lower road from Tarcutta. After passing the Junee run, the road is not so good, and I can readily understand that in wet weather it is in parts extremely bad. Cootsmundra is distant about fifty-five nailes from Wagga Wagga. For the first twenty miles the country is remarkably level, the soil rich, and but thinly timbered. It was more like driving through an English park than through Australian bush land. We passed by North Wagga, a small place scarcely worthy of the name of township. For many miles the country has been taken up by free-selectors, most of whom, as I was informed, are doing well, and are getting into their possession estates such as many an English aquire would be proud of. The great dearth of railway labour arises partly from the fact that many of the navvies who were formerly glad to get work on the line have taken to the more congenial occupation of farming their own land. Many of the homesteads we passed on our way to Junes (spelt by Government officials "Jewnee") looked comfortable enough. The land is being rapidly bought up in all directions both by selectors and quatters; in proof of which I may quote from last week's letter of the Herald's Wagga Wagga corresponent:—"In land business is brisk, especially amongst the selectors, who are making their appearance in good numbers on their way towards the Lachlan and Bland districts. No less than 6420 acres have been selected at the local land office during the last fortnight, and if this goes on much longer there will not be an acre left for selections at all in this district, Apart from selections, land is easyly perceptible. Ard this is characteristic of the country sease sever made, the biggest of which was by Mr. John Cox, of Mangopha, whe went i to Gundagai, a distance of between thirty and miles, the country is alive with free select. As Cootamundra is in the centre of one of the richest agricultural districts in the colony, it is fast becoming a place of importance. The township is beautifully situated about a mile or two eastward of a rarge of hills, of which Mount Coghlan is the most compituous. It is at Cootamundra that it is proposed to commence a branch line of railway to Gundagai, and partly in anticipation of a large amount of business bring occasioned by the railway, town allotments are being purchased, and buildings erected. The price of land has gone up wonderfully of late, allotments in central positions fetching as much as £50 the halfare. The New South Wales Banking Company has established a branch bank here, and has purchased a piece of graund on which they intend to erect premises suitable for the conducting of their business. At present the banking business is transacted in part of a store. We made Cootamundra our resting-place at the end of our first day's journey from Wagga Wagga.

On the following morning we started early for Yasa, passing on our way through Murrumburrah, a township of considerable size, and containing two or three good hotels and several large stores. Four miles nearer Sydney and we crossed the Cunningham Plains. These plains are at a great elevation, and may be seen many miles away. They are very undulatory, and from the highest of the hills many miles of country are in sight. The plains themselves possess very beautiful outlines, and what with their grand appearance, and the magnificent views all round, the scenery surpassed anything I had witnessed during the whole course of the journey. A great part of the pleins has been free selected; on another portion is the station of Mr. Campbell, who distinguished himself a few years ago by auccessfully repulsing a band of bushrangers who made an attack upon his house. The railway will cross the plains, and pass close by the town of Murumburrah. The railway works are in

THE FLOOD IN THE HUNTER.—On Thursday last a public meeting, convended by the Mayor upon requisition, was held in the School of Arts, for the purpose of taking some steps to assist in relieving the sufferers by the late ficed in the Hunter River. | MARCH 13 — The District Geroner (Mr. Shaw) has been tury these last two days investigating the circumstances stiterding the deaths of two mea. In the district. The litest was that of a man named Alexander Hunter, an old and espected miner in the No. 2 Hamilton pis. 11 appeared that bodeceased died from the effects of a fail of coal, but the most serrowful part of the affair is, that the man had been wanted by his mate repeatedly to come away from the spot n which he was working, as it was considered dangerous, tuthe refused to listen to such advise as would have saviedly saved his life, and in a few moments after helast warning, an immease mass of coal fell upon him, stilling him on the spot. The jury returned a verdict that hedeceased was socidentally hilled by a full of coal.

The second inquest was held yesterday morning on the bridy of a man named James Tracey, formerly employed hunting the railway trucks and carriages on the lines near the Newcastle station, and who met with the socident shich caused his death on Monday last. Tracey was sarbiting the guard, and standing on the buffer of the leading waggon in front of the engine, when he suddenly disappeared from eight. At this moment the engine-driver received a signal to stop, which he did immediately. Buillyan, the guard, saw the decreased disappear, and though that he had jumped off in the usual manner to give the signal that all was clear for the engine to shunt the trucks abead. Sullivan, finding no signal forthcoming from Tracey, thought something was the meter, and jumped off the carriage on to the side of the line and saw deceased lying across the rails in front of the wheel of the trait. The train was immediately stopped, the alarm given, and the poor fallow extricated at occo, when he sinted that he fell off the train. He knew that when the ladies took anything in hand they always carried it through, and they had done it ploriously that time. Then followed the healths of the sisted of the guest, Mrs. Grovency; of the healths of the sisted of the guest, Mrs. Grovency; of the health of the sisted of the guest, Mrs. Grovency; of the host and hostess, and of the lady president. The latter was replied to in very graceful terms by Mrs. Massey, who concluded by saying that it was the first time during her residence in Gundaroo that she had mixed up in anything of he kind, but after to-night she hoped it would not be it least. While replying on behalf of her own sex, she would at that she would also de all she could for the jourger portion of the other sex by sessiting them to stablish a lischenic's Institute for their mutual improvement. This cancluded the tosats, after which the tables were cleared away, and denoing began, and continued until about 12 o' clock.

AUSTRALIAN OUNTMENT.
THE GREATEST DISCOVERY of the PRESENT DAY made from the Wild Plants in the Forcets of New South Wales

"STANDS ALONE."

For all kinds of extorus acres—such as old wounds, chafings, sunburns, exacted lips and hands, sore heads, broken chilbiains, soft corns, excortations, &c., it is invaluable.

SORE EYES ARE CURED.

"Sir,—I beg to add my testimony as to the worth of this invaluable ofniment, as I think every one sheuld feel bound to do so for public benefit. Some little time ago I had very bad sore eyes, stiendant on scarlatins; they were in such a state that two dectors would not dare to give me snything for them, when I was advised to try the Australian Ointent, which, by only two applications (night and morning), made a speedy and, I consider, a miraculous cure.

"Your obedient servent,
"JOHN NICHOLS."

WHO WOULD SUFFER FROM BURNS AND SCALDS" when they can obtain such relief as JOSEPHSON'S AUSTRALIAN CINTMENT

only can give?

"Swan Creek, near Grafton, 23rd February, 1874.

"About five weeks ago my wife was standing near the freplace, when her musin dress caught fire and blazed above her head, burning her arms and legs very much—in fact they were charred; there was no one with her to assist to put the fire out, the consequence being, parts of her body were charred quite black. I obtained some of Josephson's Amstralian Unitment, and applied to all the burni parts, which gave her immediate relief from pain. Used the olintment containly. In a week the young fissh and kin came on, and she became quite well. I believe it a perfect miracle the way the oftiment soothed her intense pain and effected such a clean beautiful cure.

SORR HEADS IN CHILDREN ARE CURED BY ITS USE.

Take notice of the undertmentioned letter:—
"Parrametta, 29th Docember, 1873.
"Dear Sir,—I beg to add my testimony to the wonderful ourative powers of Josephon & Australian Ointment. My joungest daughter had suffered for a considerable period from what is commonly called sore head, the scalp being some mass of purulent sores, the constant tritation being very great, and at night, from the position the head would be in, caused increased pain, and frequently the pillow-case was covered with blood from the sores. I tried every remedy known to myself—letticas and ointment—making the latest discovery in medical treatment, carbeilo acid, 20, without any effect. Several of my friends advised me to try the Australian Ointment, at which I laughed, not believing in its virtues. At last I applied its myself, and am pleased thus publicly to acknowledge that the first application gave almost instant relief; the child had a good night's sleep for the first time for many weeks, and in a few days, to my great astoniahness, the head was cured.

"You may make use, if you think proper, of this letter."
